He likewise is under the greatest obligations to the citizens of Pittsburgh, for the liberal patronage which he has already received.—He deems it superfluous, even to mention the utility of artificial teeth, as he has inserted a considerable number, since his residence in this place.—Those that entertain doubts respecting the operation, are solicited to witness specimens of his performance. He still continues to insert artificial teeth—to mend, clean and extract decayed ones.—The teeth which he inserts, are warranted.—If more convenient, he will attend ladies and gentlemen at their respective places of abode.

DOCTOR CHISHOLM'S
Anti-Bilious Pills,

Of a quality superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a GENERAL MEDICINE, in this Country.

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India Islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates.

This extraordinary Medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuent of Bile, is without example; never producing debility or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child or weakly female.

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excruciating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flaxseed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and DISEASES OF THE LIVER, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case the dose may be increased according to the strength or constituton.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by

POETRY.

ELEGY,

Written by Lord BYRON, since the publication of his Lordship's Works.

Bright be the place of thy soul,
No lovelier spirit than thine,
E'er broke from its mortal control,
In the orbs of the blessed to shine.

On earth thou wer't all but divine,
As thy soul shall immortally be;
And our sorrows may cease to repine,
When we know that thy God is with thee.

Light be the turf on thy tomb,
May its verdure like emeralds be,
There should not be a shadow of gloom,
In aught that reminds us of thee.

Young flowers and an evergreen tree
May grow o'er the place of thy rest;
But not cypress, nor yew let us see,
For why should we mourn for the blest.

FONTENELLE.

He reached the advanced age of ninety nine years, and continued his literary pursuits to the last. Lord Orrery, in a letter written from Marston near Glastonbury, in Somersetshire, very beautifully said, "Fontenelle, like our neighbouring thorn, blossoms in the winter of his days. Voltaire pronounced him to be the most universal genius of the age of Louis XIV.

THE PREACHER.

The following beautiful and original description, is extracted from an entertaining work entitled "World without Souls."

The Preacher took his station. Time had laid his hands upon him, and had gently wrinkled his brows, they were however wholesome tracts, the furrows of the winter's field, the mete and honourable ornaments of a head silvered by the snows of fourscore years. The eye bore its testimony, that the revelation on which it rested was true, by indicating how long the soul can survive the body—and its brow, like that arch which bestrides the Heavens, not only said that the storm had passed away, but like it, prophesied also of a peace which was to come.

Marshal Grouchy.

For the following review of the history of this respectable foreigner, who has found an asylum on our shores, we are indebted to the New-York Columbian.

"Count Emanuel de Grouchy was born at Paris in 1766. His family was noble, and his sister married the celebrated Condorcet. At an early age he entered the artillery; afterwards served among the light troops; was admitted into the body guards in 1785; appointed colonel of the regiment of Conde, and made the campaign of 1792 in Savoy, the conquest of which he contributed in accomplishing. He served with distinction in the war of La Vendee as a general of division in 1793; and afterwards in Italy under Joubert. In the disastrous battle of Novi, he displayed an intrepidity bordering on rashness—charging at the head of the cavalry with his hat on the point of his sword, as a substitute for the standard, which had been lost—he was cut down by the sabres of the enemy and made a prisoner. After his exchange he joined the army of Moreau, and reaped fresh laurels on the plains of Hohenlinden.

"In all the campaigns of the Imperial army, he commanded a division of dragoons, and increased a reputation already well established. His conduct at Prentzlow, where Prince Hohenloe was captured, as well as at Freidland, was particularly noticed in the official bulletins. He also served in the fatal Russian campaign, and on the retreat commanded the "sacred Guard," a corps of officers which accompanied the Emperor. On the return of Napoleon from Elba, he declared in his favour, and was sent in pursuit of the Duc d'Angouleme, whom he soon compelled to surrender. He was then created a Marshal of the Empire, and as such commanded at Waterloo. His escape from the persecution of the Bourbons, and his arrival on our shore are events too recent to be particularized."

CHAMOUNY, Oct. 3.

I have just arrived here from a visit to the celebrated Mount St. Bernard; it is scarcely possible to form an idea of the horrid wilderness of this scene. You behold monstrous crags heaped upon each other in such confusion, and projecting so terrifically, that the first impression upon the mind is, that the mountain will instantly give way and cover the whole kingdom with its ruins. The second, and scarcely less terrific feature, is its barrenness. Upon the whole surface of the mountain there is not sufficient earth to cover the miserable bodies of those who perished in the snow: they are laid in a small building constructed for the purpose, within a few yards of the convent, where they are exposed in every stage of decay and horror to the traveller's eye. We saw, among others, the body of a woman who had perished in the snow only two days before; yet here, in this abode of dreariness and desolation, in the midst of eternal snows, and upon nearly the most elevated spot in Europe, forty human beings have freely chosen their residence for life. This was the only convent which escaped the French Revolution. Bonaparte granted it several privileges and comfortable means of subsistence for the monks. Upon reaching the top, we found the monastery almost literally buried in snow: the cold was intense, tho' the heat in the valley from which we ascended was as great as I had ever felt; the transition was equally painful to the body and frightful to the imagination: one supposes himself transported in a few hours from the Equator to the Pole. We were received with the greatest kindness by the monks, and dined and supped with them with as much pleasure as we had ever dined or supped before in our lives. There are persons, who travel over Europe, begging alms in the name of this monastery, some of whom I have seen in England, and who obtain considerable sums of money in this way; we were told that the persons were all impostors. This monastery, we were informed by one of the monks, was built by St. Bernard out of the ruins of a temple of Jupiter, which stood nearly upon the same spot. The mountain itself was called Mons Jovis. We were shewn the spot upon which the temple stood; not the slightest vestige of it remains. Etiam periere ruinae. In exploring, however, to a considerable depth among the rocks, a great number of medals, small images, and motivet plates, have been discovered at different times; the usual inscription was, Pro itu et reditu; several of these were shewn to us by the monks; among others, the plates from which it is inferred that this was the pass by which Hannibal entered Italy. The inscription is Jovi Paenino (in some Penino) from which it is inferred, that the offering was made by a Carthaginian; this, however, is no very strong evidence in the absence of any inscription in the Carthaginian language itself.

In the chapel of the monastery there is a beautiful monument erected to the memory of the French General Dessaix. The statue of Dessaix is extremely well executed, as far as I could distinguish, from the darkness of the weather in this dreary spot, and the height at which it is placed. He is represented in the act of falling from his horse into the arms of a grenadier, and repeating the well known words. "Allez dire au Premier Consul" &c. The inscription is simply, A Dessaix, mort a le battaille de Marengo.—The body was brought here from Milan by order of Bonaparte; and the monument conveyed from Italy to Paris for the purpose of being seen by him, previous to its erection where it now stands.

We have spent seven or eight days in seeing Mont Blanc, the Glaciers, the Vale of Chamouny, and other wonders of nature, with which this spot abounds, and upon which travellers have so frequently exhausted their imaginations and their feelings. Perhaps the most curious object of all is the Album kept at the inn, in which every traveller records his sensations, after visiting the mountain.—It is the most curious of all the miscellanies I have ever seen. Nonsense and the spleen are, however, eminently predominant. Madame de Stael passed here a few weeks before with her daughter, on their way to Lausanne, where Mademoiselle was I understood, to bestow her hand upon the Duke de Broglio, son or nephew of the general of that name, who figured at the opening of the French Revolution.

LONDON February 8.

The French papers of the 2d instant, contain a statement that the shops and stalls, where news papers used to be read in Paris have been shut up; but the measure appears to be only a temporary one inasmuch as it is intimated that they may be expected to be re-opened when the prefect of the police shall think proper. This circumstance, we own, strikes us as the most forcible indication we have yet observed, of uneasiness, on the part of the government at those rumors which have been spread with such mischievous activity throughout the kingdom. At one time Bonaparte is said to have landed at the head of 80,000 Turks; then with an equal army of negroes; then Maria Louisa is advancing from Milan, supported by the combined armies of Austria and Bavaria, under the Archduke Charles and Prince Eugene. It would be difficult to imagine a credulity strong enough to be influenced by such palpable absurdities, if we were not unfortunately assured by experience of the "greediness and gluttony" with which the ignorant, the malevolent and the disaffected, in all ages and countries will swallow "nonsence and a lie." This lamentable bias has been augmented in France by the clandestine arts of the factions there, and by the open systematic, and unintermitting calumnies of certain Journals in this country; for the latter are scarcely less zealous than the former in pursuit of their common object—a new revolution.

The departure of the foreign troops from the capital seems to have been the signal for a general movement of the agitators throughout the kingdom; and though they have no where succeeded in creating any thing to be called insurrection, yet it is clear that they have in many places given occasion for serious uneasiness. The minister of police has addressed a circular to the prefects on this occasion. He directs them to call the attention of the persons under their authority to facts notoriously existing, a ut altogether inconsistent with the exggerations and misreprentations of the factions "Show to them a King," say she "strong in love of his subjects, in the fidelity of the chambers and in the veneration of the sovereigns. Let them observe him surrounded by a royal guard daily increasing in number, and by that national guard, 40,000 strong, which alone for six months watched around the throne. Make them behold France, reassuming her place among the nations—the national justice--reaching the great criminals, even the highest ranks of society, and the government strong enough to pardon, because it is strong enough to punish; but so much the more firm, the more severe, the more inflexible against future crimes, as it has been indulgent to those which are past." Nevertheless, while there is cause to apprehend that sedition continues its desperate game, it is absolutely necessary that government should adopt measures of prevention---measures, we hope merely temporary, but such as are rendered necessary by the machinations of a faction, habituated, for the last 26 years, to play with the passions, and impose on the credulity of their unfortunate countrymen.

January 29. A very curious work, has lately been published at Leipsic by Kotzebue. It is written by his son, a young man who sailed round the globe with the late Russian expedition of discovery, and was afterwards an officer attached to the staff of Gen. Witgenstein's army, in the memorabe Moscow campaign of Bonaparte, but was taken prisoner while reconnoitering and sketching the plan of a road, which communicated with the rear of the French position at Polotzck. He gives an account of his adventures and the observations he made on his journey from Polotzck to Soissons, the depot for the Russian prisoners in France. After being taken,---young Kotzebue was carried before Generals Wrede and St. Cyr, the latter of whom commanded the French division stationed at Polotzck. He appears at first to have been received with great jealousy. Gen. Wrede suggested that he should be searched for papers, but this was prevented by St. Cyr. Some time before he was taken he had accidently formed an acquaintance with the son of Massena, who happened to be then at St. Cyr's head quarters. In relating this circumstance, the author says "With pleasure I observed young Massena, the son of the celebrated Marshal, among the general's Aids de camp, A few hours before the last battle was fought,--we met and had a friendly participation of a flask of wine at the outposts. On this first interview, on such an occasion it was natural that military events should form the subject of our conversation. Among other topics, the possibility of being taken prisoner was not omitted; finally we promised reciprocal aid if such an event should occur, and exchanged addresses. This was scarcely done, when the trumpet sounded; each hastened to his post, and the sanguinary contest commenced. All these circumstances rushed suddenly on my recollection the moment I saw him. We embraced in the presence of the Generals who stared at us with astonishment until the cause of this proceeding was explained."

EUROPEAN NEWSPAPERS.

We have received a file of Paris papers and English prints as late as the 10th of February last, but they do not contain any material intelligence. They present to us a mixture of Tragico Comico events, jests from Joe Miller, modernized, shrewd calculations on the political affairs of the continent. Amongst these mighty things, we notice a remarkable fox chase in which poor Reynard had the good luck to escape, and seven horses were killed in the pursuit. The debate on the motion for an address to the Prince Regent in answer to his message was conducted with remarkable temper and the ministerial majority in the house of commons, was 67. It is stated that out of 338 Frenchmen, who voted for the death of Louis, there were found to be 85 lawyers 14 medical men, 17 magistrates, 11 military, 13 men of letters, and 6 private gentlemen. It is said out of this number, 70 died a natural death, 33 were guillotined, eleven committed suicide, 6 were assasinated, 5 died a la Cayenne, 2 died mad, and one was drowned. Of the remaining 210 some are still alive, and others are unaccounted for. We have found in these papers some shrewd theatrical criticisms—several wonderful important elopements—sundry clandestine marriages, &c.

These papers, surely do not give any countenance to any of the reports now so current, of tumults, riots or disturbances, on the Continent. These editors have found his Majesty Louis the XVIII in remarkable good humour, and by the last accounts he was busily engaged not in quelling an insurrection, but in bumpering off a glass of wine.—The Duke of Angouleme was receiving company, and the Dutchess of Angouleme was receiving company. We notice, these things not as important in themselves but when kings sit with folded arms, it is but fair, to presume that their subjects are quiet. St. Petersburg, probably will now become the great European emporium of the arts and sciences---civilization is evidently travelling to the north, a ludicrious case is mentioned of an evasion of the marriage act. The marriage act, it seems it was restricted in its provisions to the land—the legislature never having in their contemplation, a marriage by water. The ceremony was performed in an open boat, on the surface of the river, where the two lovers were married, according to the rites and ceremonies of the English Church. Hymen has ever been dextrous in eluding Parliament We notice more particularly the complexion of these papers because, where we perceive such a minute detail of the measures, amusements, follies and vices of which life is made up, it is most decisive of all proofs, that no tumults, and insurrections are seriously apprehended. Men do not think, at one and at the same time of cannon, and of theatres, of marriages, and of deaths, of bayonets and of wine glasses. Fed. Rep.

SALE OF LOTS

IN THE TOWN OF

GRANGER.

TOWN LOTS will be offered at PUBLIC SALE on the 29th day of MAY next, on the PREMISES. A small part of the purchase money will be required in hand, and a liberal credit for the remainder. Settlers making certain improvements within given periods, will have a deduction on the price of the property, on which they improve. Mill-wrights, Ship-wrights, Carpenters, Masons, Brickmakers and Bricklayers, as well as Labourers are invited. Granger is situated on the west bank of the Bay, and near the Lake shore at the mouth of Rocky River, Cuyahoga County, State of Ohio. The fine harbour for vessels of burthen, the fisheries, with many other natural and geographical advantages, few Towns on the south side of Lake Erie, if any, can vie—the adjoining country is fertile, fine water, gentle ascents and descents, seats for mills and other works are numerous on durable heavy streams of water—the settlement progressing beyond any reasonable supposition. Last November a sale was held on the premises, where considerable Lots were sold, several of which will be improved this season, and now, at the solicitation of several who wish to purchase property for setting, the proprietors are induced to offer such portion as will answer those who incline residing at that place.

Mr. Scull,

The Constitution and Congress.

Any person who will give a satisfactory reply to the following queries, will be entitled to the thanks of your correspondent.

1st.—Has not the present Congress passed a law by which their pay is increased?

2d.—Is there not an article in the Constitution of the United States, in these words—"No law varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives shall take effect until an election of Representatives shall have intervened."

Mediterranean Squadron.

Letters from Port Mahon, dated Jan. 1, mention that the U. S. squadron remained in that port, consisting of the United States, Constellation, Erie, Ontario, Epervier, John Adams and Hornet. The Hornet was about to sail for Marseilles, and the Adams for Gibraltar. The Spaniards had not delivered up the Algerines. The Erie had brought the Americans who were on board the Spanish ship, San Fernando, which was wrecked on that coast. All the lives were saved; but the Algerines made slaves of the Spaniards, about 200. Every possible effort was made by the Americans to save the ship.

TROUBLES IN VIRGINIA.

The Richmond Enquirer of the third inst. contains the presentment of the grand jury of Harrison County, denouncing in strong terms an act passed by the legislature of Virginia at their late session, entitled "an act more effectually to prevent the circulation of notes issued by unchartered banks".

The jury call the passage of the act "a daring attempt to infringe the constitutional right of the people of the commonwealth: they allege that it is a violation of the 10th section of the first article of the constitution of the U. States: that it is contrary to the 8th article of the declaration of rights made by the convention of Virginia: that they are advised, that such an attempt would not exceed its turpitude, although aided by a host of usurped legislation."

The jurors boldly state that "should the legislature enforce its tyranny, usurp the powers of the Judiciary, and pronounce an absolute judgement of confiscation, as is instanced by 2d section of said act, such a juncture might furnish a legitimate element for public resistance."

The Editor of the Enquirer observes, "the spirit which is manifested by these proceedings" must be met and resisted."

From the Salem Gazette, April 4.

By the arrival of the brig Nancy-ann, information had been received that the Chilian army in Chili, under General Pinto, had been defeated, and almost entirely destroyed by the royal army under general Pesvaler, in consequence of which nearly the whole province of Chili had been obliged to submit. Reinforcements for the patriot army had marched from Buenos Ayres, but with no strong prospect of success. That dissentions continued to prevail in Buenos Ayres, between the opposing parties of the patriots, and it was expected that the party in power would soon be obliged to yield to their opponents

ECONOMY.

How times and things are altered!—Once, nothing was such music in the ears of the people as the word economy. It had such a peculiar charm, that the very mention of it would stir the whole system like an electrical shock. But now it is no more regarded than the most obsolete phrase in the English dialect.—The federalists were driven from power, under the alledged want of economy. Prodigality! Prodigality! Prodigality! was constantly echoed and re-echoed from the top of Gallatin's rebellion pole, at Pittsburgh, to the flag staff of Shays in Massachusetts. But since the democrats have possessed the reins of power, they have squandered away millions upon millions, of the people's money in the most shameful manner, and it causes no kind of emotion whatever. Our taxes are doubled, trebled, and quadrupled, yet all seems to go perfectly right. Scarcely a murmur is to be heard. During the war cannon balls were manufactured at Rome in the western district, and transported to Sackett's Harbour by the way of the city of New-York, and tent-polls purchased at Pittsburgh, and transported by the way of Philadelphia, New-York and Albany, to Niagara!! Yet all is right—perfectly right. Now, during the past season, this same economical government, has paid for the workmanship—barely for raising frames and nailing rough boards, THIRTY FOUR THOUSAND DOLLARS, for covering the two unfinished ships at Sackett's Harbour!! Can it be——but hush. It is all right. Northern Whig.

The BANK BILL has finally passed both houses of Congress and wants only the signature of the President to become a law.

Palace of Aroma.

IN THE YEAR OF OUR HEGIRA THE SIXTH.

Vires acquirit eundo.—Virgil.
We gather strength as we go,

Moved by the desires of our people, we have shaken off the torpor that had for a while benumbed our faculties, and like the sun from under a "murky atmosphere," have burst through the silence that had pervaded our imperial palace. Grief for the sudden departure of our "better half," the imperial partner of our cares, had indeed almost overpowered our sensibility and rendered us callous to the concerns of our subjects. The shock has been great, and the palace seems to have been under a soporific influence. But rising above the billows of adversity, we bid defiance to the enemies of our reign; our palace shall yet exhibit more distinguished proofs of our science than have yet amazed the world.

The Tonsor's art shall flourish still,
And thousands yield to Tibbett's skill.

The vivifying influence of Ourself shall be exhibited in our future operations, and whilst the odoriferous gales of Arabia sport around our gates, the most rugged visage shall arise from our hands with that benignant smile which ever attends the consciousness of felicity. In a word,

Tibbette is himself again.

Let the loss of conjugal felicity be forgotten: let

"That fatal remembrance, that sorrow which throws
Its bleak shade alike o'er our joys and our woes," be forever buried in oblivion.

Having pronounced our last anathema upon Coal Hill (the present abode of our ci-devant partner,) we proclaim to the world that the operations of the opening campaign shall be conducted in the most imperial style. We will brush all before us, and to those who complain that we cut too close, we say with the immortal Shakespeare,

No man so potent breathes upon the ground
But we will beard him.

Under the auspices of the Tonsoric Deities, we will continue in the full tide of successful experiment until we arrive at the magnum bonum, the climax of perfection. The well tempered instruments of our art, with edges whetted upon the true philosophers stone, shall continue to brighten the phizzes of mankind. But the talismanic virtues of the Imperial razor rest not here. To the physiognomist, we exhibit the countenance shaved of its deformity and expressive of pleasure. The bearded harvests that daily fall under our tonsorial sickle afford delight and instruction to the agriculturalist, whilst, to the most bewildered metaphysician, we can furnish a cue for his wandering ideas. Even the most fastidious female is proud to ornament her temples with borrowed ringlets, prepared by our Imperial hands.

"To smooth the chin by tender strokes of art"

But, alas! how many are there, whose auricular nerves are so insensible to the divine language of our proclamations that we must condescend to address them in the vulgar tongue, called plain English. Therefore, having thought fit to inform our good subjects more particularly of our residence, we proclaim;

1st. That our Imperial Shop is still in Market street, between Front and Water streets, in the city of Pittsburgh, where gentlemen of all grades and professions can be shaved in the best manner.

2ndly. Having been informed by our chief minister of finance, that our subjects are falling off from their daily attendance at our levees, to the great injury of our exchequer, we do hereby extend our benevolence to all such misguided subjects, and a general pardon, on condition, that they return without delay to the obedience of their only legitimate sovereign.

Our dutiful subjects we would ag in call,
As we heretofore oft have, to Tonstrina Hall,
Where our Levee is graciously held every day,
Their tribute and bounden submission to pay;
And those who have thrown off the yoke of allegiance,
We warn to return to their wonted obedience.
The signs of the times let them well bear in mind,
For our rights, see we Kings of the earth are combin'd,
Let our millions be slain, let the world be unhing'd
Ere our sacred legitimate rights be imping'd.
Call to mind when our barberous clarion was rung,
When from May-pole majestic our banner was flung,
Whose stripes like the day star gleam'd far o'er the tide,
Till Ohio's broad wave caught the rays of its pride;
Then with glorious vouchsafement ye hail'd the behest,
That announced me the Barberous Prince of the West.

TIBBETTE, Autocrat.

The Georgetown Federal Republican and the Baltimore Telegraph, have been united, and will in future be published at Baltimore, by Paul Allen and Co. under the title of the Federal Republican and Balimore Telegraph.

I laugh and grow fat, at the follies I see,
And you're welcome to fatten, by laughing at me.

Classical Hotel.

GEORGE HAVEN, takes this method to inform the public, that he has (partially) compleated his long premeditated plan, in furnishing a suitable retreat for the beau-monde of the City of Pittsburgh, at the pleasantly situated Brick House, one mile from Town, between Billy Price's Round House, and the Two Mile Run—where the Statesman may find a stimulus to Patriotism—the Classic Idler, the Poet and Philosopher, fresh inspiration—the more industrious, though not less respectable, Merchant and Tradesman, drive away "dull care" by the proper use of the following articles:——

SOUND ARGUMENTS.	NECESSARIES.
Gammon and Eggs,	Bread, Porter,
Beef, Mutton,	Butter, Beer,
Venison, Fish,	Mead, Vegitables,
Fowls, &c. &c.	Coffee, Tea,
	Sauce, &c. &c.
SUPERFLUITIES.	GRIEVANCES.
Wine, Brandy,	Pepper,
Spirits, Whiskey,	Mustard,
Gin, Cakes,	Vinegar,
Pies, Tarts,	Pickles,
Turtle Soup, Segars,	&c. &c.
Custards, &c. &c.

The above articles will be exchanged, on reasonable terms, for dollars, dimes, cents, mills, or bank bills. He flatters himself that those gentlemen who favour him with their custom, will not think it superfluous, nor take it as a grievance, if they should be prevailed upon by sound arguments, to deem it necessary to make immediate payment—or approved credit, at thirty, sixty or ninety seconds, or as long as one can hold his breath.

From the liberality of the terms—the retired and airy situation—and unremitted attention, he hopes to receive a share of patronage—at least from those who think with a favourite author, that

"The Mouse who is content with one poor hole
"Can never be a Mouse of any soul."

And whilst he solicits the patronage of his friends and the public, he would not forget to invoke a blessing from his tutelary deity, the god of feasting—Epicuri de Grege Porcum.

O thou whose power, directs the feast,
When Bishop, Alderman or Priest,
Meet here to sup or dine;
Here at my Temple day by day,
Their willing homage let them pay,
And worship at thy shrine.

To them, O, be it ever known,
Whene'er my loaded tables groan,—
And then (if such thy will)
Grant them an appetite (pray I,)
That they may drink, and yet be dry,
May eat, yet never fill.

Enlarge their mouths, extend their jaws,
Preserve their teeth from aches and flaws,
Their grinders from decay;
O let their swallows be so wide,
That thumping slices down may glide,
Nor aught obstruct the way.

To thee thy humble suppliant prays,
O let them pass their nights and days
(From gout and surfeit free)
Midst Venison, Ortolans, Ragouts,
Turtle and Turbot, Soups and Stews,
Roast, Boil'd and Fricaseed.

To Iron Manufacturers.

A PERSON well acquainted with the art of making Iron, and all kinds of Steel, and who possesses a knowledge of a great improvement in this art, by which from 10 to 20 per cent may be saved in the expence of manufacturing, wishes to engage in the business, with some person of capital. Any such person, having at least $20,000 of capital to employ in this way, may hear of a great opportunity, and learn further particulars by applying to JOHN JOHNSTON, Esq. Postmaster, at Pittsburgh, who will promptly communicate with the advertiser. Persons possessing mines of Iron Ore, with wood or coal for fuel, and Iron Works already erected, may find this offer of the advertiser worthy of an early attention. A want of the necessary capital is his only motive in seeking an associate. He is confident that his improvement is of great national importance, and is determined that the Iron and Steel made on his plan, shall all be stamped with the name of the inventor. March 1816.
